Subject: Re: Better Bike Plan 2025 workshop—Separate paths best, if feasible

The best and most ideal Bike Plan would be, if at all possible, are like exist in Areas of Livermore and Northern California.

The bicycle path, 10-20 feet in width, is separate and fenced off from the road, where never the two, are anywhere near from becoming mutual safety hazards for one another, under normal circumstances.

Realizing this is not a practical solution in San Jose, the next best would be the type of bicycle lanes in San Jose on Doyle Road westbound, from Saratoga Avenue, where there is enough room for both drivers and bicycle riders, under present conditions, by which is believed to be called a cross hatch lane.

Thank you for the opportunity to provide input.
